Judge: NY immune to Fed gun law

Associated Press

A federal law designed to give the gun industry broad immunity from lawsuits filed by crime victims and violence-plagued cities does not apply to a pending suit by the city of New York, a federal judge has ruled.

New York, a federal judge has ruled.

If upheld, Judge Jack B. Weinstein's ruling would raise questions about the point of the federal legislation, which was championed by the National Rifle Association and signed into law by President Bush in Octobes in a 97-nege opinion last Friday that the legislation contained an exception wide enough to allow New York's calim to go forward.

In a victory for gun makers, however. Weinstein also rejected the city's argument that the law was unconstitutional.

To Our Riders and Our Union Brothers and Sisters in Public Service from NYC Transit Workers

Our contract deadline with the MTA, Thursday December 15, is fast approaching. We need your understanding and support.

Do not be fooled or misled by the MTA. Not even if they try to bribe you with conveniently timed discount fares

Don't forget their record and their lies. They lied about their books, keeping two sets of them. They raised fares in order to maintain service levels, so they said. But once they jacked up fares by a whopping 33%, they then started cutting service on buses and on trains, yielding longer waits, less service, dirtier trains, dirtier stations and dirtier buses.

Now the MTA has a surplus. $1.04 billion! They have decided to use the surplus to hand out token bribes instead of shelving their plans to raise your fares every two years. Why? They want to establish the rule – they play . . . you pay!

The MTA is trying desperately to burn the surplus. They have an urge to splurge. Maybe a new headquarters! Maybe a platform over the West side rail yards! Maybe give the money to security contractors . . . even though there is $600 million of unspent security money sitting in a room in Albany! No way will they consider using it to relieve your pain, let alone our pain!

We carry more riders than any transportation system in America, and we do it using fewer workers per passenger than any other system. This takes a toll on us. The MTA pays well below the national average for our members' health benefits. But we suffer more, get sick and sicker, get killed or die more than the average in the city, the state, the country!

Now, in these negotiations they want us to pay while they play. The surplus will not last forever, they say, so let's negotiate like there is a deficit. But if the fiscal situation years down the road is uncertain, there are reasons why. Over the years the state has cut its contribution to mass transit. The city too has reduced its level of real support. Why should we pay as a result?

The MTA wants us to pay by sacrificing our unborn and our retirees. We will not. The MTA wants us to surrender our working conditions and protections that we fought for and earned over decades of struggle. We will not.

Instead, we seek to improve our working conditions and our lives. Our bus operators, train crews and station agents develop long-term medical problems because of the conditions they work in. Often, they don't even get a chance to relieve themselves. We cannot tolerate this any longer.

Please stand by us. We will do everything we can to achieve a fair settlement by December 15. But we will not accept working without a contract!

The freshman filmmaker and five-time Tony Award-winning director and choreogra-pher insists the production suffered none of the time-consuming or expensive saudis one might imagine plaguing the first major proj-cet shot in a new studio."

Stroman declared.

The saliet, in, the same day, shoot a scene The saliet, in, the same day, shoot a scene in a just of the saliet of the saliet of the saliet of the "It was immorpant to do this woods in Nami-"It was immorpant to do this woods in Nami-

"It was important to do this movie in New York. The movie is authentically New York, even in its talent. The accountants are all Broadway folk. The girls are all accomsenses, I have a couple of Tony Award winners."

"We're a Broadway story!" the 79-year-old Brooks is quoted saying in production notes for the film. "It would have been heart breaking not to shoot this movie in New York. And here we are in Brooklyn, only I labed. Movely bread. We were so poor, the neighbors had to give birth to me." [Brooks, who is grieving over the death of his wife Anne Bancroft, was not available for interviews.]

Although Steiner is a new, state-of-the-art, 100,000-square-foot facility, "The Production of the Steiner's is not the first movie missical shot on the site of the Brooklyn Navy Yard. "It was a sound-ward-winning missical, which was itself in spired by Brooks's Oscar-winning 1968 film of the same name, "The Producers" is the comit cuty of how meets and unhappy accountant Loo Bloom and washed-up, but tenacious theater producer Max Bialystock conspire to swindle investors out of 52 million by staging the biggest flop in Broadway listory — a surefrie lover that would close history— a surefrie lover that would close history and surefrie lover that would close history— a surefrie lover that would close his Embracing Brooklyn: The movie adaptation of the Broadway musi-cal "The Producers," which stars Uma Thur-man as Ulla Svanson and Matthew Broder-ick as Leo Bloom (above), was shot in the Brooklyn Navy Yard's Steiner Studios. Tony Award-winning Susan Stroman (right) directed both the film and stage versions.

"Springtime for Hitler — A Gay Romp with Adolf and Eva in Berchesgarten," written by the insane, Puther-worshipping playwright, Franz Liebkind, they assume they've found their show. By hiring Roger DeBris, the worst director in New York, and his common-law assistant, Carmen Ghia, to stage the show, how could they miss?

Stroman's film uses many of the original stars of the Broadway show in the roles they Liebkind.

Stroman believes "The Producers" has endured for so long, in so many forms because, "It is a buddy movie, but everybody in this musical comes in and states their wants and dreams ... At the end of the musical, it is delivered, and that is what satisfies the audience.

livered, and that is what satisfies the audi-ence.

"Mel Brooks's characters are working-class people that have these wants and dreams," the 51-year-old Delaware native continued. "And I think that has an accessi-bility that is appealing. Mel says he writes for the people, and think people see themselves in these roles, although these are very eccen-tic characters." Stroman says both she and Brooks felt it was important to make a fflin version of the Broadway show, not only to preserve the extenordinary performances of its stars, but also to make it available in a format that is accessible for audiences who can't afford tickets to the stage show or who don't have the means to watch it in the Big Apple.

"Brooks] absolutely has that sensibility. He wanted someone in Ohio, who is never going to make it to New York, to see the performance of Nathan and Matthew and to hear Mel Brook's Yipics and music and thank God he wants to do that," Stroman said.

Brooks still has it

Brooks still has it

A renowned director, producer, writer and actor in his own right, Brooks concentrated on writing the show, and later the movie, and care in his own hos also directed and choreographed the stage musical, to handle most of the other details.

"When we created the musical, I think what was great for Mel was he didn't have to worry about anything." Stroman explained. He ... just had to worry about the comedy. And he wrote and wrote and wrote wonderful lyrics, and it just gave him the freedom to be this incredible writer, and that is why it is so chock full of comedy.

"And when we got to the movie, Mel had his producer har on. He was there to say," Supplies that the supplies have been a supplied to the supplies and the supplies asking for pie a la moue, Just ass, to un-pie."

So, how hard was it to switch gears and turn a stage musical based on a non-musical movie into a movie musical? Not so hard, Stroman swears. Actually, she says "The Pro-ducers" was the perfect project for her to cut her teeth on, since it required so many of the ducers' was the perfect project for her to out her teeth on, since it required so many of the same skills she used in directing stage productions. The fact that many of her actors also had considerable film experience and knew how to pull back and not paly to the balcomy as they do in theater, also helped, she admits.

The stage of the dependence is really enjoying in printing a participation of the producer is produced in the producer in the producer in the producer is not responsive, they are going to drive that show and get home. They are in charge of how fast or slow that show goes.

"But in film, the director is totally in charge. The director is the only constant all the way through the year, for the entire film. I think the editing process was my favorite."

Working through tears

Working through tears
Despite the joy and success "The Producers" has brought to all involved, both Brooks and Stroman suffered personal tragedies during the course of creating the stage musical and new film. Stroman's bussband, musical new film. Stroman's bussband, musical new film. Stroman's bussband, musical neukemia shortly after she me Brooks, while Brooks' beloved wife. Bancroft, died of uterine cancer just as the film was being edited.

"Thom everything he is going through," Stroman cordibacted." I speak to film almost every does and it is strange that this kind of thing would happen. The material of "The Producers' is like a life raft. It was when I started with it and now it is for him."

Although Brooks is avoiding the linelight these days, Jonean emphasizes he is still und now it is for him."

Although Brooks is avoiding the linelight here only to grow the producers of the musical It's rich. It's a wonderful story the musical. It's rich. It's a wonderful story. The Producers," directed by Susan "The Producers," and the Producers, and the Producers, and the Producers and the Prod

Dec. 10 at 7 pm Paper Clips

Directed by Elliot Berlin & Joe Fab

Running Time: 88 min. MPAA Rating: G

Description:

Whitwell Middle School in rural Tennesse whitwell Middle School in rural lennessee is the setting for this documentary about an extraordinary experiment in Holocaust education. Struggling to grasp the concept of six-million Holocaust victims, the students of six-million Holocaust victims, the student decide to collect six-million paper clips to better understand the extent of this crime against humanity. The film details how the students met Holocaust survivors from around the world and how the experience transformed them and their community.

opment Corporation that will take over the derelict neighborhood. Lowin revealed the fate of the mansions in a presentation to Brooklyn's elected officials at Borough Hall on Dec. 7. The lawmakers unanimously approved the demolition and the subsequent expansion of the Nary Yard. The vote allows Acrives unged the city to delay action pending a further study of ways to save this grand relic of Brooklyn's naval past. "They want a quick, fast and dirty solution," said Paul Palazzo of the Fort Green Association. "They are knocking bistory down to put up cinderblocks." Palazzo believes the houses could be converted into a retail space, but the city says it would cost millions to restore the bodly duringed home. "They want to be substituted to the converse of the

And there were a lot of hearts and stars in that holiday catalog.
Buy, buy love. Hello, holidays.
It probably didn't help that at the exact time that Teen Spirit and OSFO were making their lists and e-mailing them twice, Smartmom's pal, Gluten-Free Mom, was taking her homoschooled kids to a "Buy Nothing Day" event.

Long ago, they decided that their offspring would receive only a modest number of gifts on each holiday (it's not just a bld to tamp down this gift-buying is expensive, too!). But despite Smartmom and Hepcal's efforts, their children still believe that the holidays are all about the stiff. How did Smartmom's kide get to be that the holidays are all about the stiff. How did Smartmom's kide get to be for could she trot out a version of the Twinkie Defense and blame society? Mud is tossed over Billyburg landmarking

Who knew that protect-ng beautiful buildings has such an ugly busiwas such an ugly business?

The effort to protect an 80-year-old Cass Gilbert-designed warehouse on the Williamsburg waterfront broke down this week into a round of schoolyand name-calling and bitter accusations that the sold his vote for campaign contributions.

The battle started in September, when the city Landmarks Preservation Commission designated the Austin, Nichols Cowarchouse a landmark.

In a rare move, the Commission designation the designation this week so that the building could be converted into high-end apartments on the waterford.

The mayor vetoed the Council "de-landmarking" only to have the Council rush to overned that two the next day.

Yes, sports fams, the fur was flying! Supporters of landmarking the warehouse began a fairly loud whisper campaign detaing $2.000 in campaign contributions that Yassky has received from two members of the developer's family, loel and Margaret Kestenbaum. But Yassky said the campaign cash had nothing to do with his vote.

paign cash had nothing to do with his vote. "My vote [to de-landmark the building] was entirely on the merits about what is best for the Williamsburg water-front." Yassky told The Brook-hyn Papers.

"The city spent three years banging out a terrific revital-ization plan for the Greenpoint and Williamsburg waterfront and I am unwilling to under-mine it for a completely un-distinguished building." he said. There are far more build-ings in that neighborhood worthy of preservation." But after Mayor Bloomberg vetoed the Council bill and championed the Egyptian Revival building's "historical importance," Yessky hurded "The only reason they Jeity officials Juneau this land-mark in the first place was to curry favor with preservation-ists after refusing to landmark 2 Columbus Circle," Yassky told the New York Times, referring to a quirty 1900s-erra building in Manhattan that many want to see protected. "Now they'll milk [the veto] and really try to get political credit," Yassky added. "Bull from mayoral spokesman Jordan Barowitz. "That's absolutely moronic," Barowitz said. "Is he saying we're pandering to the preservationists? As in, "There goes that mayor again — protecting landmarks!" The two buildings have nothing to do with each other."

The Kestenbaum family, represented by former City Councilman — now lobbyist — Ken Fisher, refused to back with a lay-up of his own and, after a failed Nets posses-sion, Morris Peterson spotted up and hit a game-clinching trey. Jason Kidd led the Nets with 17 points in the losing ef-fort fort.

Bicyclists defend their turf

The Brooklyn Papers

Can't they aljust get along?

Sick of ceding the bitle lunes to "greedy" motorists, beychists last week defended their turf—a new hike path that runs up Clinton Street between Cobble Hill and the Manhattan Bridge.

With heavy chains strung across their chests like bandiers, a crew of helmet-haired bitlers knocked on carwindows and passed out tips to drivers on how to peacefully oc-exist with their two-wheeled foes.

"Drivers were surprisingly receptive," said David Snettman of Tamsportation Alternatives, who organized the "Give RespectGet Respect" campaign.

Snetman soft ansportation Alternatives, who organized the "Give RespectGet Respect" campaign.

The mean motorists have accepted the niles of the road.

"It gets hostlie out there," said Brian Schamdler, who leves in Prospect Heights. "It be rading along in the shoot of the part of th shoulder and drivers will pull up really close to me and honk."

The bike advocates campaign is partly fueled by the June death of rider Elizabeth Padilla, who was killed by a truck on the corner of Fifth Avenue and Prospect Place.

Better awareness of road-sharing rules could have saved Padilla's life.

"That truck was parked in the bike lane," said Snetman, "And because it was, she veered into traffic."

Twenty-one blikers died this year in traffic accidents, a bump up from last year's death toll of 16.

Another leafletting event is planned on Fitth Avenue in Furk Slope on Friday, Dec. 15, during the evening that hour.
